

Idioms

An idiom is a phrase comprised of words that has a meaning that cannot be derived from the conjoined meanings of its individual words. If an idiom contains all parts of a sentence or can be used as a command, it can be said on its own. For example, “It takes two to tango” has a subject, a verb, and a predicate. “All ears” does not have a verb, so it must be used within a sentence.

Prepositional Idioms

Prepositional idioms are prepositional phrases whose meaning depends on the preposition used. A preposition is a word that explains the relation between one subject in the sentence or clause and another. Some examples of prepositions include: on, up, off, at, with, under, over, and to. Different prepositions following a single word can lead to different definitions. For example, in the chart below, “to catch” can be followed by “on” or “up”, but each preposition gives the entire phrase a unique meaning.

Idiom	Meaning	Idiom	Meaning to catch on	to understand	in favor of	to approve to catch up	to reach someone's level	adept at	to be good at to be on track	to be following a plan	on time	punctual to be off track	not going as planned	native to	to be from the place at first	in the beginning	predisposed to	to have prior experience at last	finally	sensitive to	to be wary of something

Phrasal Verbs

Phrasal verbs are phrases comprised of a verb and a preposition. The addition of the preposition alters the meaning of the verb. For example, “call” means to communicate with someone through a phone, but “call off” means to cancel. Phrasal verbs are considered prepositional idioms. Certain phrasal verbs can be separated within a sentence, meaning words can split the verb and the preposition. Some examples include “ask out” “ask him out” and “cross out” “cross it out.” Other phrasal verbs must be kept together with no words dividing the verb and preposition, such as “look into.”

Idiom	Meaning	Idiom	Meaning
ask out	to ask someone on a date	grow up	to become an adult blow up	to get angry	look into	to investigate break out	to escape	pass out	to faint call off	to cancel	run out	to have none left cross out	to draw a line through	take after	to resemble someone else dress up	to wear nice clothes	wear off	to fade
